

- U.S. stocks ended little changed on Wednesday as worries about bank regulation and a setback for drug company Pfizer offset signs of improvement in the labor market and services sector. Shares of Pfizer fell 1.6% after its Alzheimer's drug did not meet the main goals of a late stage clinical trial. The Dow Jones Industrial Average closed at 10,396.76, down 9.22 points while the NASDAQ was flat at 2,280.68 points.
- Canadian stocks finished slightly higher on the back of resource stocks which were lifted by firm prices for gold and oil. Shares of Suncor gained 2.0% while Barrick Gold rose 1.2%. Shares of the Royal Bank of Canada fell 1.8% after its results were weaker than expected. The S&P/TSX Composite Index finished up 24.54 points at 11,852.85.
- Canadian natural gas prices ended flat on the day. Temperatures in U.S. Northeast and Midwest are expected to be below normal for the next few days, while Toronto and southern Alberta are expected to be warmer than the seasonal average through Tuesday. AECO spot price closed at $4.62 per Mcf.
- U.S. natural gas prices gained on speculation of a larger than average draw in tomorrow's government report. FCC expectations for DOE inventory data for the week ending February 26, expected to be released tomorrow include a draw of 155 Bcf. Median expectations compiled by Bloomberg are calling for a draw of 127 Bcf. NYMEX natural gas for March delivery closed at $5.285 per Mmbtu, up $0.040.
- Crude prices ended higher on the day, helped by a weaker dollar despite U.S. government inventory data showed larger than expected builds in crude stocks. DOE inventory data for the week ending February 26 showed a build of 4.03 MM barrels while median expectations were for a build of 1.275 MM barrels. Crude for April delivery settled at $80.87 a barrel, up $1.19.
